Zermatt 2016

Two Omaha Ski Club members, Mark and Ben, participated in this season's Chicago Metropolitan Ski Council (CMSC) Europe ski trip to Zermatt Switzerland, from Friday, January 15th to Saturday, January 23rd. Zermatt is in southern Switzerland (red star on map at right) near the Italian border, and is interconnected with two ski areas in Italy. It's a large ski area with over 7,000 feet of lift-served vertical and 54 lifts of various types. This was our second visit to Zermatt; both of us were also there in 2010 with the CMSC Europe trip. We spent six days skiing, on the 17th through the 22nd; the 15th, 16th and 23rd were travel days. CMSC is a group of over 70 ski clubs; 88 of their people, including the two Omaha Ski Club skiers, were on the trip. The group stayed in two different hotels; we were in the smaller Astoria hotel.

Getting to Zermatt was a time-consuming day and a half grind. Ben began the process with a one-hour flight from Omaha to Chicago's O'Hare airport; Mark's initial flight departed from Colorado Springs. Once at O'Hare, we picked up our luggage, did a bag drag from the domestic to the international terminal, then checked in again at Swiss. We then got on an 8-hour flight from Chicago to Zurich which was followed by a 5-hour bus ride to the train station in Tasch, a short train ride to the station in Zermatt, and a 10-minute walk to the hotel (pictured at left); most gas-powered vehicles aren't allowed in Zermatt, so the bus couldn't get us all the way there. An electric taxi with cart delivered our luggage. Along the way, we shifted time zones; the time zone in Switzerland is 7 hours ahead of Omaha and 8 hours ahead of Colorado. We arrived early enough in the evening to eat dinner at the hotel.

We skied five days in Zermatt and spent the sixth day in Zermatt and the Italian areas (Valtournenche and Cervinia) across the border. We were able to do this because Zermatt has an interconnected system of lifts and trails with the Italian ski areas. We spent most of the time skiing with a group of experienced people who were advanced skiers and had been to the area before.

We began our first skiing day, Sunday the 17th, with a walk to the Gornergratbahn cog railway, which took us several thousand feet up to one of Zermatt's summits. We spent the rest of the day exploring various trails in the lower Gornergrat area of Zermatt. The weather was cloudy, windy, foggy and very cold, with occasional light snow. That night, and every following night, we had dinner at the hotel – it was included in the price of the trip. Breakfast at the hotel was also included.

The following day, Monday the 18th, we saw somewhat milder weather with thin high cloudiness and less wind. We accompanied our group up the Matterhorn Express gondola to the Schwarzsee summit area and explored a wide variety of trails. We visited a wide variety of on-mountain huts and restaurants.

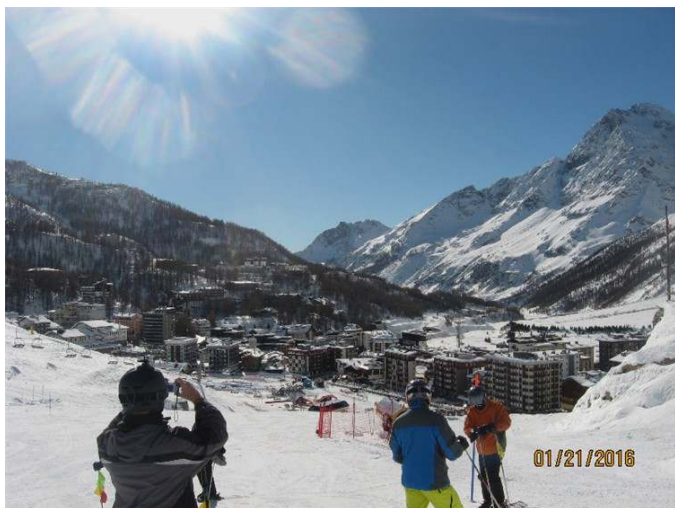

Tuesday, the 19th was variably cloudy in the morning, with fog on the higher peaks, and cleared up in the afternoon. We went up on the Sunnegga underground train (an interesting experience; the individual train cars are built at a 30 degree angle and the entire train runs up a 30 degree inclined tunnel) to access the Rothorn summit area. We also visited an igloo village and bar up on the mountain. The igloos had interesting carvings inside.

Wednesday, the 20th, was a chilly day with a few clouds that cleared out in the afternoon. We skied on the Klein Matterhorn area again and explored a few trails that we hadn't done on Monday.

Thursday, the 21st was the day we skied up and over the Italian border to the nearby areas of Cervinia and Valtoranche. The weather was excellent – warmer and totally clear. We had lunch on the Italian side in Cervinia and actually had spaghetti and pizza in Italy! We got back on the lifts and skied back to Switzerland later in the afternoon.

Our last skiing day was Friday, the 22nd. This was another mild bluebird day. We skied a combination of areas on the Swiss side – started at the Klein Matterhorn area then moved over to the Gornergrat and Sunnegga areas, ending up at a local on-mountain restaurant with live music. The views were great!

We left Zermatt early Saturday morning on the 23rd, using a short train ride to Tasch and a 4-hour bus ride to Zurich, followed by a 9-hour flight on Swiss back to the O'Hare airport in Chicago. Ben then got on the Chicago subway to Midway airport and took a Southwest flight to Omaha. Mark took a United flight from O'Hare back to Colorado Springs. Both of us made it back fine. A memorable trip!
